Corona, We won't give up!

This 23rd of March, the writer reports, from South Lampung, Sumatra Island, Indonesia. We've seen Covid-19 affected us more than we predicted before. Since corona took people's concern, the news, the facts, the opinion, the tweet, feed, broadcast message, etc were going overly informative. From the positive perspective article to the hoax one. Almost every point of view has already explained by others. I almost have no space to write anything, anymore.

Corona makes us slowing our working rhythm, some journeys are canceled, some plans have to be postponed. "Indefinite time" is become the most uncertainty headline I've ever made however it always on the last part of every sudden announcement letter these recent days. We expect to overcome this situation soon. But we can only inform that the decision will be over until further notice because none of us ever know.. "when" it'll be stopped.

Meanwhile, we don't stop our work progress at home. Once this pandemic ends, we'll have maximum preparation. Using technology, ITERA still have good coordination and communication to keep our plan on the track and do all those prevention protocols on our office.

Our beloved partners all over the world feel the same thing. The country with sophisticated technologies even cannot solve this in one day. Other author says.. "Surprisingly, The mother earth do their job naturally" Let's be optimistic.

During this pandemic till a long time afterward, there will be lots of research and observations to evaluate, renew and prevent the next biological disaster and it's impacts. Not only sains but also the social field; expertise in socio-culture, laws and economic will combine their best idea to battle this virus together.

But here we are, still in the dark tunnel, watching on the little light out there, hoping we could zipping into the end of the movie, but no, we can't. We We have to pass this uncertainty. We are part of this moment, we're born in the age of history whether being a hero or just be a witness. Corona, we won't give up! (D/R)
